

The ITE Met-Section is proud to announce a new award:

Met-Section Young Transportation Professional of the Year Award

The Met-Section Young Transportation Professional of the Year Award will recognize outstanding contributions to the transportation profession during a given year. The recipient of this award must have demonstrated advancements in the transportation engineering and planning profession through leadership, administration, practical applications of engineering techniques or principles, training, or research and development. The Met Section awards the Young Transportation Professional of the Year Award on an annual basis to a government or private sector engineer who is truly deserving based on professional accomplishments during the previous year. The recipient must be 35 years of age or younger and is not required to be an ITE Member. Please submit nominations to Gordon Meth gmeth@rbagroup.com by July 31, 2010.